WILSON'S
OUTSIDE VENETIAN BLIND
AND AWNING COMBINED

View from Inside, with Awning Extended.

THE tapes and cords are of Bronze Metal; the slats are painted or enamelled in suitable colors. The metal frame is light but of great strength and rigidity.

WILSON'S

View from Outside, with Awning Extended.

THE slats run in a grooved frame and cannot rattle. They are opened and closed at pleasure, affording a free current of air and exclusion of sun. This awning does not shut out the view.

WILSON'S

View from Outside, Used as a Blind Only.

THE frame when not extended sets close to window sash and the side slats fold up closely in a small space. The objectionable rattling and creaking noises common in the ordinary outside blinds will be found entirely absent in this; it is at all times and seasons noiseless. It is handsome and durable.

THESE blinds have been placed on some of the finest houses in the country.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Having built automatic machinery for the production of the metal ladder tape, the blind is now sold at less than half its former price.

WILSON'S
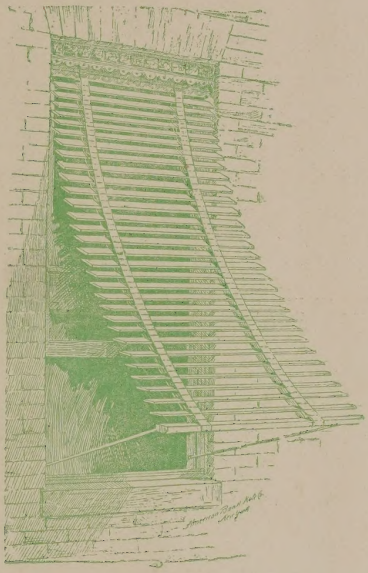
AND AWNING COMBINED



THIS blind is not fitted in a frame, it has no side pieces, and the arms are not jointed—in all other respects it is the same as described on the other pages of this folder—it can be used with or without the arms, from which it is easily detached.
